A ROUND OF TALK.

A Grizzly Caller

Winter called on gentle spring,
But she was gone away,
Slipping on the bayou,
Or bathing on the bay.

Though her dainty garments hung
Just as she left them there,
She was where the gulf winds
Were tangled in her hair.

So failing after all to find
What he was looking for,
The grizzly botard hurried
Back to his Labrador.

Then, by a sun of dragon-flies
From her brief outing drawn,
She floated on the zephyrs
To laugh her lover gone.

At something by his choler wrought
She was inclined to pout,
So with a shower of daises
She put his footprints out!

SENATORIAL RACE. — The precinct conventions to nominate and instruct delegates to the district convention which is to name a Democratic candidate for State Senator from this district, will be held at the various precincts on next Saturday. There is very little interest felt in the contest in this county, and although Messrs. Grundy and Lancaster, the two candidates, have done some canvassing in the county, it is doubtful if one half of the voters of Washington really have any preference as between the two men. As this is Marion county's time to name a State Senator the other counties of the district refrained from putting out a candidate, so that the contest is purely a Marion county one. It has been suggested that a good way to settle the matter of the nomination would be to let the friends of each aspirant in Marion county fight it out, and that the strongest man in his own county be given the vote of the other counties. This plan of course, would be irregular and not at all according to political procedure, but still it does appear that it would be a good way to settle the matter

REPUBLICAN SIDE. — Now that the contests for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney will be settled in a few days there is some speculation being indulged in as to who will offer on the Republican side for these offices. As for the Judgeship there has as yet been no one to offer and so far as we can learn no one has ever been especially mentioned. In the Commonwealth Attorney's race it is generally conceded that Mr W. H. Sweeney, the present incumbent, will be a candidate to succeed himself, although no authorative announcement has come from Mr. Sweeney recently Several months ago, however, he made a statement to the effect that he would like to have the Republican endorsement if the Republicans of the district see fit to give it to him and from present indications it looks as if he will get that endorsement

STIRRED UP—The three candidates for Commonwealth Attorney have succeeded in stirring up quite an interest in that race in this county along towards the end of the campaign and the chances of the various claimants for votes are subject much surmise and some speculation. Probably the cause of this special interest which has been aroused is the series of three cornered debates which was inaugurated last week and which was carried on at various points throughout the county. They do say that the discussions at times waxed exceeding warm as each man told of his especial fitness for the office and poured a few broadsides into his opponents.

COLVIN—Mr. George Colvin who has been in Louisville for several years where he held a responsible position with the Louisville Title Co. has resigned to return to Springfield to become associated with Hon. John W. Lewis in the practice of law. The Louisville Times in speaking of him says: "Mr. Colvin is a graduate of Central University. He is well versed in law and literature and was conceded to be one of the best title examiners in Louisville. During his college days Mr. Colvin won fame as a baseball pitcher and all-round athlete. He has made many friends in Louisville." Mr. Colvin's many Springfield friends are glad to welcome him and wish him unbounded success

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. VanMetre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says, "I had a severe attack of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia, and Consumption. Try it, It's guaranteed by C. J. Haydon druggist Trial bottles free Reg. sizes, 50c. and $1,00

Mr. Joseph Pominville, of Stillwater Minn., after having spent $2,000 with the best doctors for stomach trouble without relief, was advised by his druggist, Mr. Alex. Richard, to try a box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. He did so, and is a well man today. If troubled with indigestion, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite, or constipation, give these Tablets a trial, and you are certain to be more than pleased with the result. For sale at 25 cents per box by Haydon's drugstore.

A Farmer Straightened Out.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freelyand if not satisfied after using it he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Ryder, of Pattens Mill, N. Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar saying, 'give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.'" For sale by Haydon's drugstore,

Future Hog Prices.

The farmers throughout the country are very much interested in getting all the information that they possibly can as to the probable future price of hogs the coming season. There is every indication at the present time that there will be prices almost as high as at present, unless something unforseen might arise to change the prospects, says the Farmer's Tribune. It is certainly a conceited fact that the supplies of stock in some portions of the country were largely drawn upon and scarcer this spring than has been the case in many years. In pigs it doesn't take look to restock, but it certainly will not be done inside of another crop, The high prices of feed will tend to support high prices of the product of the feed transformed into meats. While the summer grains will act as substitutes for corn, there will be no great lowering of prices and feed until the corn crop that will be grown this year is available for feed purposes. If the demand for pork keeps up as at present, and it is probable from indications, good prices will prevail for pork the coming year. While the high prices are almost certain during the summer and fall.

A Little Early Riser

now and then, at bedtime will cure constipation, biliousness and liver troubles. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are the famous little pills that cure by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach and liver that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely, and if their use is continued for a few days, there will be no return of the complaint. Sold by C. J. Haydon.

GREATLY ALARMED

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., had been troubled for four or five years with a continuous cough which he says "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stage of consumption." Mr. Burbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. Now read what he says of it: "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the twenty-five cent size, was permanently cured. Sold by Haydon's drugstore

An Unlucky Year.

"If something terrible doesn't happen to the human race before the end of this year, I'm no true prophet," said the superstitious man. "Fate has written it down as plain as day and there's no way dodging it.

"In the first place the year 1903 contains a mighty bad combination of figures. If you take them separately and add them up you will find that the result will be thirteen, no matter which way you work it out.

"All right. You will laugh at me as far as I have gone, but wait until I produce some more facts. In the 1903 there are three days in which the thirteenth of the month falls on Friday. The first was February, the next was March, and the last will be November.

Take a look at the calendar and find on how many previous years had this many Fridays which came on the thirteenth of the month. On the 13th of February I forgot my self and walked under a ladder. Before I had gone half a block beyond that ladder I fell down and sprained my ankle.

I am going to stay in the house all day on the thirteenth of November and its ten to one the house will catch fire.

"If figures count for anything this is the unluckiest year that old Father Time has presented to us in a mighty long while. It's a combination that can't be beat, and I'm just sailing around looking for trouble all the time."

A Sterling Test.

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of No, Mehoopany, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are to-thing guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles Try them Only 50c. at C. J Haydon's drugstore

Too Great A Risk.

In almost every neighborhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is to great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by Haydon's drugstore.

ROAD SUGGESTIONS.

A Correspondent Calls For More Interest In The Road Question.

I want to say a few words to the people of Washington county about the roads. The dirt road running east of Tatham Springs No. 24, was so bad that people could hardly travel it at all this last winter. What I want to say is that I think that the people should take a great deal of interest in roads. When the roads begin to get muddy the people begin to grumble about them being so bad. I think if they wouldn't forget about the roads being bad when summer comes they could fix them up and have better roads than what we do have, and could travel much better and would be be ter satisfied than if they traveled in the mud all the time. They have made up a subscription paper on this road, No. 24, and have got about $70 signed besides what the county gives, which is about $15, making $85 in all, and I think if they will just keep striving to get more subscribers thew will get enough for six months roads very well. have a better road than we have now anyway. Of course we can't have a good road in one or two years that way, but if they keep on ever year we will have a better road I believe if people on all dirt roads would take the same plan that we have there would be better roads in Washington county than there has been in many years. Let's go to work and have good roads all over the county in all directions. Of course the dirt roads are getting tolerable good now but remember that winter will come again with rain sleet and snow and the roads will be bad as ever, So let's go to work while roads and times are good. All can help a little I am sure. J. W. SATTERLY,
Tatham Springs.

Killed At New Haven.

A distressing accident occurred in New Haven Thursday morning that caused the death of Mr. J. R. Redman. He had been at work in a garden near the railroad track and had started for his home just as passenger train No. 23, from Louisville, was pulling into town. As the train drew near him Mr. Redman was walking in a narrow path at the side of the track and after the engine and all the coaches except the last had passed him, he, in some unaccountable way, came in contact with the rear coach. The blow knocked him about thirty feet to the middle of the street, crushing his skull, breaking his jaw bone and otherwise butchering him. He lived in an unconscious condition until next morning when death came to relieve him of his suffering. The funeral took place Saturday morning and the remains were interred in the Protestant cemetery with Masonic honors. Mr. Redman was a prominent business man and postmaster of New Haven, and was 65 years of age. He leaves a wife and six children, three boys and three girls, all of whom are grown.—Falcon.

Every seven days the blood, muscles, and bones of a man of average size loses two pounds of worout tissue. This waste cannot be replenished and the health and strength kept up without perfect digestion. When the stomach and digestive organs fail to perform their functions, the strength lets down, health gives way, and disease sets up Kodol Dyspepsia Cure enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten into the kind of blood that rebuilds the tissues and protects the health and strength of the mind and body. Kodol cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. It is an ideal spring tonic. Sold by C. J. Haydon.

Horrible Suicide.

Mrs. J. H. Howard, one of the best known women of the Northern part of Barren county, committed suicide at her home in Hiseville last Friday morning about 9 o'clock by cutting her throat with a razor.

Mrs. Howard was about sixty-five years of age, land was one of the most beloved women in that section. Her husband, Mr Joseph H. Howard, died about six or eight years ago, and since then her children had married and moved away one by one until last Friday morning, when her daughter, Mrs, Harry Bybee left for Louisville to join her husband, who had been there about six weeks. Grief over the departure of the last daughter is supposed to have unbalanced the mother's mind, and while in this condition she took her life.

At the time she committed the deed there was no one at home with her except her daughter-in law, Mrs. Potter Howard, who was engaged in preparing dinner. Mrs. Howard went out unnoticed by he daughter-in-law, crawled up under the house as far as she could get and there almost severed her head from her body with a razor, inflicting four horrible gashes When her son Peter Howard, returned to his dinner a search was instituted for his mother which resulted in her body being found under the house. She had been dead about three or four hours, and the body was cold and stiff.—Glasgow Times.

Traveling Is Dangerous.

Constant motion jars the kidneys which are kept in place in the body by delicate attachments. This is the reason that travelers, trainmen, street car men, teamsters and all who drive very much suffer from kidney disease in some form. Foley's Kidney Cure strengthens the kidneys and cures all forms of kidney and bladder disease. Geo. H. Hassan, locomotive engineer, Lima, O., writes, "Constant vibration of the engine caused me a great deal of trouble with my kidneys, and I got no relief until I used Foley's Kidney Cure." Sold by Wood & Campbell.

Notable Character

Mr. Hale B. Russell, died at his home in this city Thursday afternoon at 1:10 of heart trouble. He had been ill for several weeks and death was expected at any time.

The death of Mr. Russell removes from our midst one of the most notable characters of the State He was born in Russellville in March 1817, and was 86 years of age. When quite a young man he removed to Bardstown as a journeyman cabinet maker. In 1838 he was married by Bishop H. H. Kavanaugh to Miss Elizabeth Weller, of Bardstown, who died a little over a year ago, after a wedded life of sixty-three years.

As a cabinet maker Mr. Russell was considered one of the leading craftsmen of his day; and specimens of his handiwork now in existence, are marvels of beauty and workmanship.

At the breaking out of the Texas war for Independence in 1836, Mr. Russell volunteered his services, and served in the army of Gen. Sam Houston, he also served with Col. Fannin, one of the ill-fated heroes of the Alamo. Mr. Russell was one of the few survivors of this war in which he bore a conspicuous part. He was reticent and it was only at rare intervals he would talk of this war and tell of the indignities received at the hands of Santa Anna.

Several years ago Mr. Russell removed to Texas where he had been given a tract of land by the State in remembrance of his services, but he returned to Bardstown after a short absence. Up until the past few years he worked at his trade. About five years ago he had serious trouble with his eyes, and it was feared that he would lose the use of them entirely; since then his sight has been much impaired, and it was with great difficulty that he could read the papers.—Nelson Record.

The X-Rays.

Recent experiments, by practical tests and examination with the aid of the X-Rays, established it as a fact that Catarrh of the stomach is not a disease of itself, but that it results from repeated attacks of indigestion. "How Can I Cure My Indigestion?" Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is curing thousands. It will cure you of indigestion and dyspepsia, and will prevent or cure Catarrh of the Stomach. Kodol digests what you eat—makes the stomach sweet. Sold by C. J. Haydon,

Snake Tracks And Rain.

Mr. Henry Junius predicted that it would rain Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 and the blessed shower came promptly at the time scheduled. For 36 years Mr. Junius has lived at his present place of abode on Greenville street and ten hours before a rain the water in his well never fails to become muddy. Monday night when he went to get a fresh drink he observed that the water was muddy and when he came down town Tuesday and predicted a rainfall when there was no evidence of such in the clouds, no one put any credence in his prognostication, but when the windows of heaven opened at 1:30 it put everybody to rejoicing. A farmer who came into our office early Tuesday morning to pay his subscription told us it would rain before night. His reason for the faith in his statement was that he had noticed a large number of snake tracks on the road coming to town.—Harrodsburg Herald.

CAUTION

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds, perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduused this year. Regular size 75 cents. At all druggists. C. J. Haydon

A Terrible Tragedy.

Esquire McKay, father of Hon. E. E McKay, was also a merchant at one time and Sheriff of the county for a number of years. Here I will mention a terrible tragedy that occurred in 1840.

Jake Pence was a mulatto, belonging to a man of the same name, who owened the farm where Mr J. Allen now lives, Squire McKay arrested this negro for a theft he had committed, and administered a whipping as punishment for the crime. For revenge the negro went to the home of Squire McKay, which was on Plum Run, and murdered his aged mother and a grandson, the burned the house down. A young lady, a niece of Mrs McKay, who was making her home there together with two negro women escaped and hid in the garden. The crime caused the whole country to rise in arms.

The negro was finally found secreted under a small bridge that spans a millrace on Simpson's creek. Squire McKay was so enraged that he did not wait for the law to punish the negro, but shot him dead. The body was given over to the physicians of Bloomfield for dissection. The skeleton hung in one of the offices for many years. It answered two purposes—the study of anatomy and years afterward we students used Jake's skull for a candle-stick—sticking the candle in what we call the forhum magoum.—A. H. Merrifield, in Kentucky Standard.

A Lesson In Health.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system. Sold by Wood & Campbell.

Important Case.

Judge M. C. Saufley, in the Circuit Court at Harrodsburg Tuesday, handed down an exhaustive opinion in the suit of Dr. Wm. P. Harvey and others of Louisville, against Wm. C. Bell, Jr., and Wm. C. Bell, Sr., of Harrodsburg, sustaining the demurrer of the defendants to plaintiffs petition. This was a suit brought by Dr. W. P. Harvey and others seeking a construction of the will of William Payne, a wealthy merchant of Mercer county, who died in 1890, leaving an estate value at about $50,000. W. P. Harvey married a daughter and Wm. C. Bell, Sr., married a granddaughter of Wm. Payne, and the suit was to decide who owns the estate By the terms of the decision Wm. C. Bell, Jr., takes the entire estate and Dr. Harvey gets nothing whatever. The case will be appealed. Dr. Harvey is editor of the Western Recorder and President of the Baptist Book Concern, of Louisville, and Wm. C. Bell, Sr., is a candidate for Circuit Judge of this, the Thirteenth judicial district.—Danville Advocate.

The Breathitt county trouble is coming to a head and the chances are that there will be a general reform in the state of affairs in that county. Curtis Jett and Tom White, under indictment on the charge of murdering James B. Marcum, are occupying separate cells in the Jackson jail. A strong guard of soldiers is on duty around the jail and Col. Williams is carrying the prison keys. White was arrested at his home by the soldiers and deputies. He made no show of resistance after finding that all avenues of escape had been cut off. Jett was brought from Winchester by a detail of soldiers and was escorted to the jail surrounded by mistiamen. Some of the people at Jackson, including Mrs. Marcum, have asked that more troops be sent, and there have been reports of a possible uprising. These reports, however, are not taken seriously by the militia officers, and beyond ordering another Gat in gun and an extra supply of ammunition no action has been taken.

Louisville is making a record for freak primaries. Some time ago what was known as the Sapp primary was pulled off in that city and its effect was to disrupt the Republican party. And later we have the Democratic primary to name State offices which to put it mildly was a trifle peculiar in some respects. Now on Tuesday last a primary was held to name district candidates, which was conducted by one faction of the party only, the other faction withdrawing all candidates and following the orders of Chairman Allie Young who declared the primary off several days beforehand, claiming that the local committee had illegally named the election officers. All sorts of charges of treachery are made against Mr. Young by the Courier Journal and the Times. The other faction threaten to hold a primary of its own and the end is not yet.

A dispatch says that friends of former Gov. Bradley and Representative Boreing have started a movement to oust Internal Revenue Collector Yerkes from the Republican National Committee, according to former State Senator Ed Parker, of London, Ky., who submitted to an interview in Washington.

The storm king appears to be abroad. At least a dozen lives were lost in tornadoes reported in Iowa and Nebraska. Three tornadoes occurred within twenty four hours in a limited district in the former State. Heavy rainfall has added to the property loss in many localities.

Highest Cross in the World.

The highest cross in the world is said to be that which tops the loftiest peak of the Hark mountains. The cross is in reality a tower, and it commands a magnificent view of the country around. The height of the tower is 120 feet, and it stands on a mountain 1,731 feet above the sea level. A stair of 200 steps leads to the top of the cross, but there is an elevator, of which the people avail themselves who for any reason wish to avoid the long climb.

Bagpipes in Nero's Time.

Bagpipes are generally ascribed to Scotland, where they have been in use for a long time, but it was an instrument upon which the ancient Greeks and Romans played. Nero is said to have performed upon it, and an old piece of Grecian sculpture represents a player on the bagpipes dressed in the fashion that is known today as the highland costume.

THE PRINCIPLE OF REST.

A Few Practical Hints That Americans Should Consider.

The principle of rest is the principle of relaxation, a temporary cessation or suspension of energy from any part or from all of the body. Absolute rest implies the complete "letting go" of all tension, mental, nervous and physical. All are involved to some extent in every act of our daily life, nor can they be entirely separated.

Let us see what will happen if we place the body in a reclining position so comfortably arranged that absolute physical repose would seem inevitable. Then let the mind take hold of some problem and concentrate on it until all the mental energy is aroused. This energy is unconsciously communicated to the nervous system, and soon the entire physical self is in a highly tensed condition. Few people realize this until their attention is called to it. They think they must be resting when the body is inactive. It is not necessary that the body be exercising in order to be tense. A set of muscles may be nervously tense and yet be apparently motionless. The difference between a tense muscle and a muscle entirely relaxed or devitalized is what I want you to thoroughly understand, for this tension is brought on by mental and nervous strain and often held without relaxation for hours produces greater fatigue than many forms of exercise that are more physical in execution.

Remember always that the mind is the great controlling power, and it is only when the mind becomes as nearly as possible a perfect blank that the body can rest satisfactorily. If the body would rest, the mind must rest also. In other words, think rest; "let go" of everything mental and relax completely.—Rose Edson-Helme in Pilgrim.

Glottony in Ancient Rome.

Peculiar details of gluttony in the days of ancient Rome appear in a recently published book. Emperor Severus is said to have deliberately died of indigestion, having gorged himself with rich viands as a mode of suicide worthy of his age. It was because Severus liked terrible infirmity, and very badly that he took himself off in such a dramatic manner. At meals the Romans used to recline on couches, gracefully poised on the left elbow, an attitude unfavorable to digestive ease. Who among moderns could eat pigs roasted whole, stuffed with sausages and bursting with thick puddings? As the writer of the book says, "The only way to pronounce intelligently upon the cookery of the ancients would be to try it." Who among present day gourmets is capable of detecting "fifty different flavors" in pork? Who could eat a sauce composed of animals' mesenteries, dates, vinegar, oil, red wine and garum, the last ingredient being a liquid drawn from putrid fish? The writer of the book thinks there may still be "young and vigorous stomachs" which could stand the Roman "dish of roses," which consisted of "a quantity of the most fragrant roses pounded in a mortar, with the boiled brains of birds and pigs and also the yolks of eggs and with them oil and pickle juice and pepper and wine."

Wanted Them Labeled.

There was a certain master of foxhounds in one of the English shires who was greatly angered by the awkwardness of one of the gentlemen who invariably rode over the hounds. At one of the meets the M. F. H. rode up to the awkward hunter and in the most chilling tones said, "Mr. So-and-so, there are two dogs in the pack today, Sharp and Tatters, which I am especially fond of, and I would esteem it a favor if you would avoid killing or maiming them with your horse's hoofs." "Certainly, my dear fellow," replied Mr. So-and-so; "but as I do not know them, will you be kind enough to put tags on them for me?"

The Human Body.

A pupil in a village school who had been requested to write an essay on the human body handed in the following: "The human body consists of the head, thorax, abdomen and legs. The head contains the brains, in case there are any. The thorax contains the heart and lungs; also the liver and lights. The abdomen contains the bowels, of which there are five—a, e, i, o, u and sometimes w and y. The legs extend from the abdomen to the floor and have hinges at the top and middle to enable a fellow to sit when standing or to stand when sitting."

Juvenile Logic.

The logic of childhood is frequently as convincing as it is refreshingly original. Mrs. L.'s little daughter is very much given to reasoning things out for herself and seldom fails to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion. Some weeks ago she gave a party to a number of little friends, and when the time came for them to go home she politely asked them if they had enjoyed themselves. All replied in the affirmative with the exception of one conscientious maid, who said frankly, "No, I didn't; I had a horrid time." "Did you really?" said the small hostess in a puzzled tone. "I don't see why. I had a lovely time; but, then," she added reflectively, "I suppose I ought to, 'cos, you see, it was my party."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Saved his leg

A thankful man in Markland, Ind.

Gentlemen: Last February I was taken down with white swelling in my leg. The doctor came to see me and said I would have to give my leg up to the knee. I was no good; that my leg had to come off. I sent that day for some more of Geiger's Silkweed and Wild Green Potato, and after using it for three days I could throw away my crutches. I think it has saved my leg. I would cure it.

June 18. I received the medicine and am sure so much better I can throw away my crutches.

LEAPING POWERS OF DEER.

Fence Seven Feet High Cleared by a Jump to a Rock.

I was sitting one day in a stalker among the rocks on the top of the high ridge which divides the forest of Glen Quoich from Cluny. We were quietly eating our lunch when we saw three stags coming toward the march fence a few hundred yards below us. They were not alarmed, but, as the stalker said, "moving to themselves."

The first two, without increasing their pace, jumped clean over the high deer-fence. The third struck the top with one knee when we saw him turn backward. He went away a few yards; took a run, cleared it easily and joined his comrades.

Now, a story about Japanese deer. Several of them got out of a deer park on a mountain and into a large wood adjoining. We collected them with a train of nets into a walled paddock off the deer park, having left a gap in the four inch wire netting of the deer fence at the edge of the wood.

When they were safely in, a man went round and closed the gap, and we opened the large gate into the deer park. Then the fun began. We drove them in. Not a bit of it. Directly the beaters began they charged them and jumped the wire paling back into the wood again.

This paling is seven feet high and is on a very steeply sloping ground. They has to jump up hill, and it seemed to me to be utterly incredible that any animal could jump such a height that I went to look at the place, and there sure enough the keeper showed me the holes at the top wire where they struck it going over, and the men said they saw one deer tumble down on landing at the other side.—Country Life.

London's Crossings.

You can cross the three most dangerous streets in Manchester on an average 3,000 times in safety, but the three thousand and first time you will be run over. If you are not, somebody else will be in your place, for the average a year never falls by more than a point or two either there or in London. But in London you can only pass the crossing at Blackfriars bridge, which is the most dangerous spot in the city, 500 times. You may be the lucky person who escapes by chance, but somebody is certain to suffer to keep the average up, counting the accidents over a space of five years up to date. Next comes the Mansion House crossing with a 700 to one chance.—London Answers.

A Hero's Tribute.

Lincoln said of Washington:

Washington is the mightiest name on earth, long since brightest in the cause of civil liberty, still mightiest in moral reformation. On all occasions his highest is expected. It cannot be. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible; let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the name and in naked, deathless splendor leave it shining on.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

Court Day Sales.

There was a very good crowd in town on Monday but the street sales of live stock were dull. S. M. Campbell, the auctioneer, reports the following sales:

One cow and calf, $28.50; one yearling steer, $22 60; 1 springer cow, $28.76; 1 cow and calf, $35; 1 bay mare, $70; 1 bay mare, $63; 1 bay horse, $38; 1 old mule, $15 75; 1 sow and 7 pigs, $25 75; 3 barrow hogs, $24 75; 5 shoats, $4.95 each; 1 sow and 5 pigs, $20.75. Lots of old buggies on the market at from $2 50 to $20.

Candidates.

All of the candidates and their friends were in town on Monday and there was something doing politically. In the afternoon Messrs. Durham, McElroy and Spalding the three candidates for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealths Attorney held forth at the Court House and entertained a large crowd with a discussion of the political issues of the day in general and their claims for reward at the hands of the voters of the district in particular. Mr. McElroy led off the discussion in a short address to the crowd in which he set forth his claims and made a few good humored digs at his worthy opponents. Mr. McElroy is a forceful speaker and makes a good impression on an audience. He was followed by Mr. Durham of Green who spoke at some length and held the attention of the crowd and kept his hearers in a good humor from start to finish. Mr. Durham has a peculiar but rather attractive style of speaking and has a rough and ready way of scoring a point in an argument. His speech was a good vote maker and he evidently had many supporters in the crowd. Mr. Spalding made the third speech and it also was a good one and contained some pretty severe thrusts at his opponents. There is however a commendable absence of anything personal or unpleasant in this three cornered contest and the gentlemen are conducting a clean, honest campaign.

Unusual Find of Pearls

On Sunday afternoon last Mr. Chas. Greenwell made a remarkable find of river pearls. He, Mr. John Culver and Mr. Malachi Rogers were bathing in the Beech Fork just below Greenwell's Ford, and opened a few mussell shells. In one of these opened by Mr. Greenwell, 26 pearls were found.

They were of all sizes and shapes. The pearls were shown Miss Catherine Russell the jeweler who pronounced six of them very good, and serviceable for jewelers purposes. It is considered a little remarkable by Mr Greenwell that all these pearls were found in one shell and none found in any of the others which were opened.—Bardstown Record.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS

American visitors in Paris, Berlin or Vienna often wonder how and where correspondents do their work. The truth is a large part of their work is done at these very social gatherings where you have met them. Important news is usually there obtainable only. Statesmen and diplomats, generals and admirals, leaders of thought and action, the foremost men of business and the indefatigable promoters of great new ventures—all the men and women, in fact, who make the news and who are the fountain head of it—the correspondent will meet there. It depends on his individual exertions and on his tact and gift of persuasion what use he makes of his opportunities. Being treated as a social equal, it devolves of course on the correspondent to reciprocate favors shown, not in quantity perhaps, but at least in quality. The leading correspondents must have homes of comfort and must throw them open to the official and unofficial world at stated intervals, say three or four times per season. Their private fortunes or their incomes must be large enough to admit that. Their annual expenditures cannot be less than $5,000 and may exceed $15,000. The London Times, for instance, pays its correspondents on a liberal scale, salaries of $5,000 to $10,000 being the rule. Yet the majority of them find it necessary to make up regular deficiencies in their exchequer out of their own private funds.

The life of the American correspondent on the continent of Europe is a life interesting and fascinating enough in its way, and it broadens the mental horizon as perhaps no other occupation does. But it is a nerve destroying life, a life in which there is scarcely a minute he can call his very own. Every day in the year it spurs its slave on to utmost exertion. It barely pays expenses, and it necessitates constant outlays in time and money which cannot be put down in the expense account and which are a drain on health and purse alike. Even under the most favorable circumstances the game is hardly worth the candle. To go to bed at 2 or 3, fagged out with never ending excitement and toil; to be waked out of a sound sleep an hour later by a ring at the telephone or by inopportune cable inquiries from the home office; to dress hurriedly, take a cab to the nearest telegraph office and there write a hasty reply; then to return and seek a few hours of fitful sleep and to rise morning after morning unrefreshed, with never repose for body and soul—all this is neither conducive to longevity nor to a quiet and contented mind.—World's Work.

Some Visual Measurements.

"When I watch a new building going up day by day from foundation to flagstaff," said the city salesman, "I get so muddled by the time it is completed that I cannot tell for the life of me whether it's fifty feet wide or 500 feet. So far as mere visual measurements go, the size varies so much in the course of construction that confusion is unavoidable." When the excavation for the foundation is in order, the hole in the ground seems so enormous that I could take oath it covers a ten acre lot. After the steel framework goes up the building shrinks amazingly, and I say to myself: 'Well, that hut's going to be such a big affair after all. How could my eyes have deceived me so when looking at the excavation?' But when the walls are finished and the windows in and the decorations all stuck in place the whole building swells out again prodigiously."—New York Times.

Some Foreign Coins.

The franc was formerly called livre (pound), though the connection with any special weight is not evident. The name of the German coin, mark, meaning a weight of eight ounces, was formerly in general use in Europe. The name of the Italian coin that corresponds with the franc (lira) also means pound. The coins in present use in Spain have their names from other sources.

The five peseta piece, which corresponds with the American dollar, is called escudo (shield). "Peseta," the name of the small coin representing the monetary standard, means simply "little piece." "Ruble" is from the word meaning "to cut," and was so called because originally the coin was made with an ornamental edge.

Washington Letter

Less than two we ks ago Postmaster Gene al Payne announced that there would be a deficit in the appropriation for the f ee delivery division approximating $25,000 and for that reason no new free delivery routes would be established before the first of July. Since then Inspector Fosnes has been designated acting General Superintendent of Free Del very Mr. Machen, the former incumbent, having been relieved. Now Mr. Fosnes has discovered that instead of $25,000 or less, the actual deficit will amount to not less than $235,000. This is but a further demonstration of the extravagance of the methods heretofore in vogue in the Postoffice Department and against which First Assistant Postmaster Gener l Wynn protested, thereby precipitating the current investigation

The most sensational feature of the postoffice scandal during the past week has been the statement of former Cashier Tulloch, of the Washington Postoffice, in which he gives date and number of the vouchers covering many grave irregularities involving ex-First Assistant Postmaster General Perry Heath, ex-Postmaster General Smith, Abner McKinley, a brother of the late President, and numerous other prominent officials. When this report was first filed the Postmaster General attempted to kill it with ridicule but when the report itself was made public by Mr. Tulloch it caused a great sensation and the Postoffice officials are now engaged in trying to demonstrate that the more serious charges are exaggerated. In one instance, a Mrs. Fannie R. Winans, of Columbus, Ohio, was placed on the rolls at the behest of Senator Hanna, by Perry Heath, but not only was assigned to no duty but could secure none, although she urged that she be given an opportunity to earn her salary, for a period of eleven months. Mrs. Winans is now an employee of the Pension Office, having passed several civil service examinations and been placed in the classified service.

Delegate Rodey, of New Mexico, has come to Washington and makes the announcement that the friends of Statehood have agreed on a two state bill and propose to "block all legislation" until their measure has passed He further asserts that President Roosevelt has become convinced that such a bill should be enacted and will favor its consideration at the next session. It will be remembered, however, that it was stated in these letters last February that the manager in the Senate had agreed to enact a two state bill at the coming session and it was further that at that time the President was anxious that such a bill should pass In fact, had it not been for the opposition of Senator Beverage, who, as chairman of the committee on Territories, was all potent, such a bill would have passed at the last session, so that Mr. Rodey and his friends will hardly be compelled to do much blockading.

Miss Ellen Stone has made a request to the Secretary of State that he secure damages from the Turkish Goverument as indemnity for the capture and detention of herself and her companion Miss Stone makes no specific demand but it was at one time said that the United States would demand an indemnity of $66,000, It has been said lately that the payment of the ransom would encourage further outrages of a similar nature but it is believed by persons familiar with the Turkish Government that if the United States were to compel the payment of a liberal indemnity such would not be the case. The claim is put forth by Turkey that Miss Stone had been warned not to travel in the section where she was captured without an escort but it is claimed that Great Britain, the rights of whose citizens are respected to a greater extent than those of any other nation, never accepts an excuse but invariably demands "good measure and running over" in cash whenever the rights of a British citizen are violated.

The socidty people of Washington recently held what they conceived to be a reproduction of a county fair, for the benefit of the Junior Republic, and if the mistakes of ruralists who come to the city infrequently are laughable those of the urbanites who attempted to simulate rural customs were ludicrous in the extreme. For instance, to add realism to the "Dairy Department" a large sleek steer was tethered near the entrance His presence frightened some of the women and so a "herder" was added—or perhaps it would be better to say a valet—in the person of a colored groom in silk hat and bottle green livery. The groom took his place before the steer and stood like a statute facing the peaceful ox, moving only as it moved, and it was too fat to move often. The country "postmistress" was dressed as no postmistress in real life ever dressed. She looked like a washerwoman just from the tub, rather than like a postmistress. Miss Roosevelt was present and sold flowers for $2 per flower and the whole affair was voted a great success.

Ignorance

Blows out the gas and furnishes the newspapers with a jest and an obituary notice. "Didn't know it was loaded" may be an honest plea, but it never brought a victim back to life. Those who let a cough run on, in ignorance of the danger, find no escape from the consequences when the cough develops into lung trouble.

The best time to kill a snake is in the egg. The best time to cure a cough is when it starts. Ordinarily, a few doses of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure a cough at the beginning. But even when the cough is deep-seated, the lungs bleed and the body is wasted by emaciation, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred effect a perfect and permanent cure.

"My husband had been coughing for years and people frankly told me that he would go into consumption," writes Mrs. John Shireman, of No. 265 25th Place, Chicago, Ill. "He had such terrible coughing spells we not only grew much alarmed but looked for the bursting of a blood-vessel or a hemorrhage at most any time. After three days' coughing he was too weak to cross the room. The doctor did him no good. I stated the case to a druggist, who handed me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. My husband's recovery was remarkable. In three days after he began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery he was up and around, and in two more days he went to work. Two bottles cured him."

Mental

Strain Affected General Health.

Doctor's Doses Weakened Stomach.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Me.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine brings rest and sweet sleep to the tired brain worn out with the cares and anxieties of the sick room. Read the following:

"I have always been healthy with the exception of a touch of rheumatism since my age came on, up to the time of my husband's last illness some years ago. I assisted in nursing my husband for nearly three months when he departed this life and the mental strain I think caused my trouble. Aside from extreme nervousness my trouble commenced with sore throat and neuralgia. My physician gave me purgative doses which weakened me very much and my stomach for a time seemed inactive. Mental strain and the dormant condition of my stomach soon told upon my general health. I had little appetite and was soon forced to stay in bed a greater part of the time. Within a week after the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Tonic I was up about the house. I continued their use until completely cured. My faith in Dr. Miles' Remedies has been strengthened by experience of other people, our daughter having used Restorative Nervine with splendid results in a case of paralysis and a friend to whom I sent a box of the Anti-Pain Pills reports that she has been completely cured of neuralgia by their use. I know of a number of others whom your medicine has helped in a large degree. I wish you continued success." —MRS. FRANCES COFFMAN, Dayton, Va.

Good Roads

In a recent meeting called for the purpose of promoting public interest in public roads the Hon. W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska, said:

"It is important for the welfare of our government and for the improvement of our civilization that we may make life upon the farm as attractive as possible.

"Notwithstanding the introduction of free letter delivery, the telephone, gas manufacturing plants and the extension of electric car lines, there still remains a pressing need for better country roads, a need emphasized and made more apparent by the pavement of city streets. As long as mud placed an embargo upon city traffic, the farmer could bear his mud-made isolation with less complaint, but with the improvement of city streets and with the establishment of parks and boulevards, the farmers' just demand for better roads finds increasing expression The people now realize that bad roads are indefensible and are prepared to consider the remedy."

Home and Farm repeats and commends the words of Mr, Bryan with great satisfaction. We take pride in the reflection that in the very beginning of the movement for free rural delivery Home and Farm stood for equal privileges for farmers and merchants. There was no reason why men living within fifteen minutes' walk of the city post office should have their mail delivered at their doors four times a day while farmers living five and ten miles from the postoffice had to go after the mail themselves.

But the free rural delivery is only one in the series of things needed to make the farm more attractive We all recognize the fact that there has been a drawing off of young people from agricultural pursuits to our great cities. It is one of the tendencies of the times that we should do what we can to counteract. The chief method of counteracting it is to make the farm attractive in all of its aspects. It is now attractive for its healthfulness, its freedom from excitement, its quiet and serene beauty. It is unattractive in that it is isolated that there is little social intercourse or social pleasure, and in the distance from school and from church privileges There are great changes going on in life in America. The extension of the electric car lines through the rural districts will undoubtedly do much to draw people from the towns to the immediate vicinity of the towns, and gradually bring the more remote districts into direct connection with a certain part of town life

But the farmer needs to consider especially the value of good roads. This would make life more attractive on the farm, but primarily it is a measure for making farming more profitable through all years, good and bad. It is not possible to estimate the cost bad roads entail upon the farmers of America. We have greatly reduced the cost of transporting farm products from a railroad depot to the great markets of the world, but it costs about as much now as it ever did to get the farm crops from the fields to the railroad station. The thing for the farmers to do is to reduce this cost by acting together and securing better roads all the year round.—Home and Farm.

Found A Leak.

As the result of drinking what they thought was whisky, five men employed at the Adams Express warehouse in Cincinnati were poisoned, one dying shortl after arriving at the hospital. The other four men are in a serious condition.

At 9 o'clock Wednesday a bottle was received from Mempais addressed to Kitty Nobbe, 507 Harris street, Cincinnati. In handling the bottle J. P. Ficker discovered a lead and remarked to the other men: "This is a nice bottle of booze and too good to let go to waste." One of the men procured a tin cup and all took a drink They became violently ill in a few moments and were rushed to the city hospital. Ficker died on arriving there, while William Stevens, George Eberle, Louis Burbank and William Daly are reported in a serious condition. The police are of the opinion that the bottle contained either arsenic or embalming fluid.

English Brass.

The composition of English brass about seventy parts of copper and thirty of zinc. "Prince Rupert's metal" contains 75 to 80 per cent of copper and on account of its golden color is employed to some extent in jewelry.

The kind of brass called tombac contains still more copper, nearly eighty-five parts in a hundred. It is the alloy used for the manufacture of what is called Dutch metal, an imitation of gold leaf. It can be rolled into sheets, and these can be beaten out till they are only fifty-three thousandths of an inch in thickness.—Chambers' Journal.

IN SEARCH OF AN AFFINITY

By....
MARY WOOD

Copyright, 1902, by T. C. McClure

The blue waves danced shimmeringly in the sunlight. The three lounging in the shadow of the pier found its coolness grateful.

Kitty Covington sat up suddenly, scattering the sand in all directions. "Oh, I've lost my St. Joseph!" she cried, with a little gasp of dismay.

The men lying at her feet rose with one accord, anxious to appease her ladyship. "Lost what?" they asked in chorus.

"My St. Joseph," petulantly. "And now I shall never find it in all this waste of sand, nor my affinity." Her voice rose to a wail as she looked hopelessly at the long stretch of beach over which they had strolled from the hotel. The rising tide had already obliterated their footprints.

"I never guessed that you had anything saintly about you," Tom Patton began teasingly.

She flashed him a look, but he went on unabashed, "And what's that you said about affinities?"

The girl's pretty face flushed pinkly. "Oh, nothing," she declared, with palpably assumed carelessness, gazing fixedly at a passing sail. But they would not be gainsaid, so finally she told them.

KITTY GAVE HIM ONE OF HER CHARMING SMILES.

"It's an image of the saint I was wearing around my neck so that I—" she hesitated, but went on defiantly—"should know when I met my affinity."

A shout of laughter went up from the men.

Kitty jumped to her feet and started to poke diligently with her parasol in the sand where she had been sitting. "It only shows how ignorant you all are when you laugh like that," she said severely. "I have known girls who tried it, and it came true every time. I must find my saint or"— She paused expressively.

"Your saint is a sinner to leave you in the lurch in this heartless fashion," Tom said lightly. Kitty could not read below the laughter in his eyes. Her own flashed as he went on soothingly, "Perhaps your affinity will find you."

The girl turned to him scornfully. "And so you advise me to wait patiently, like an unknown continent, till I am discovered. Thank you, but I prefer to do my own choosing. I just must find that St. Joseph."

Allan Winthrop had been searching in the sand heap, his anxiety in marked contrast to Tom's coolness. He raised a face flushed by his exertions, saying reassuringly: "Oh, your saint shall be found, Miss Kitty; never fear. And no doubt the lucky man who brings it back to you will be your affinity."

Kitty gave him one of her charming smiles. Tom's indifference to her loss needed punishment. "I have unlimited faith in St. Joseph," she said sweetly; "so do find him for me, Mr. Winthrop."

The two started up the beach, Allan radiant over such unusual encouragement of his hopes. But Tom's face still wore a teasing smile as he picked up the forgotten parasol and followed them at his leisure.

During the next three or four days all the unmarried men, more or less secretly, spent considerable time and thought in search for the missing saint. Was not Miss Covington the prettiest girl at the Point and the most willful? But her willfulness seemed only to add to her charm. No; not all the men. There was one who went on his way serenely, apparently quite oblivious to the necessity for exertion—Tom Patton.

Strangely enough, he was the one man whom Kitty ardently desired to bring to her feet. It was the old story of the pursuit of the unattainable reacted with modern settings, though Kitty would have indignantly denied any deliberate angling. "Only I would like to have the pleasure of refusing him," she said to herself vindictively. "Even if I am only eighteen and ten years younger than he is, he must learn to take me seriously. Oh, I will teach him!"

A letter came to Miss Covington one afternoon that made her wrinkle her pretty forehead in surprise. It was from her cousin, Tom Carruth, rising clerk in the largest retail jewelry house of the nearest metropolis.

"What new craze has struck the Point?" the offending paragraph ran. "Here we have had three orders come in from men there in the last few days for images of St. Joseph. Are you having revival meetings? I guess not, particularly as each order states 'of the kind usually worn by young ladies as charms.' We don't keep them on hand, so had to send for some. But we are expecting them, so three young ladies will be the happy recipients in a day or two."

Kitty's lips parted in a low whistle, but the walls of her room never betrayed the unladylike proceeding.

It was that very evening that Tom asked her to take a stroll up the beach. She assented with unusual alacrity.

They were far beyond the sound of the orchestra in the hotel ballroom before Tom broke the silence.

"I am going back to town Monday," he began abruptly. The girl on his arm shivered, but it might have been from chill at the sea mist which was rising. "A month has been an unusually long vacation for me. I was so worn out that they made me take it."

Still the girl made no reply.

"It has been a very happy time," he went on more gently, "and you have made it happy for me, little girl. It has been good of you to give so much of your time to a sober old fellow like me."

Kitty drew away from him. "Why don't you say that it has been kind of you to give so much of your elevating influence to a foolish butterfly like myself?"

"Kitty!" With a masterful movement he put his hand under her chin and turned her face up to his in the moonlight. There were tears in the dark eyes, and the mouth trembled piteously.

"Kitty!" he cried again, but this time his voice was full of mad happiness as he bent and pressed his lips to hers.

"And it was all without the help of St. Joseph," she said a little later.

The old teasing look came into Tom's face. "I have something to confess," he began meekly. He thrust his hand into his vest pocket and drew out—the St. Joseph. "I picked it up the day you lost it," he said contritely. "I never meant to keep it. But I did want something of yours, seeing that I had no hope of winning you. And then I think I was a bit jealous of the old fellow. I was afraid he might do some unfair discriminating."

The next morning Kitty was offered three several St. Josephs, with the slight encumbrance of three hands and hearts But she refused them all collectively. "I don't need any more St. Josephs," she said, with a charming flush, "for I have found my affinity." And by noon the Point was agog over the latest engagement. "It was all through the St. Joseph," the girls said. But two people know better.

A Lazy Race.

A lazier man than the average Burman it would be extremely hard to find. When it is absolutely necessary for him to work, he generally hits upon some method which will save him a lot of exertion. If he wishes to cultivate a piece of ground, he sets light to the brushwood as a cheap, easy and efficacious method of preparing the soil. For two or three years he cultivates that piece of land, and then he sets light to another spot, allowing the jungle to grow in the old place, which will be ready for reburning when the other ground wants a rest.

Rice growers dispense with plows, turning loose instead a number of buffaloes, who cut up the saturated soil with their hoofs. When a Burman has earned a little money, he immediately proceeds to spend it all, for the Burmese have no ambition to be rich and never hoard; consequently there are no large landowners, and, there being no aristocracy, the people are as near being on an equality as possible. Poor people are quite as rare as rich people, and the only beggars to be met with are the lepers, who sit on the steps of the pagodas.

Tubbing.

"Tubbing," as the Britishers call it, is not so modern a custom after all. Even eccentric baths, such as those of milk and of flowers, are not a novelty. Isabeau of Bavaria used to have great decoctions of chickweed brewed daily, and in them she would take her tub. Diana of Poitiers took her morning plunge in a tub of rain water. Eighteenth century beauties swore by baths mingled with linseed distilled with Mexican balm, which was dissolved with the yolk of an egg. Or they believed in preparations of almonds and melon juice, milk of green barley, veal bouillon and water distilled from the honey extracted from roses. Marie Antoinette was addicted to tubbing, and she always liked to have her bath flavored with wild thyme, laurel leaves, marjoram and a little sea-salt. On the other hand there was the Princess Eckmuhl, who at the age of eighty-five was renowned for her beautiful eyes, her exquisite complexion and her abundant hair and who never used anything but pure water on her face.—New York Press.

Grant's Boy Admirer.

An intimate friend of President Grant said to him one day, "General, my little boy has heard that all great men write poor hands, but he says he believes you are a great man in spite of the fact that you write your signature so plainly that anybody can read it."

The president took a card from his pocket, wrote his name on it and handed it to him.

"Give that to your boy," he said, "and tell him it is the signature of a man who is not at all great—but that fact must be kept a secret between him and me."

A SAILOR'S MASCOTS.

Miscellaneous Collection That He Takes From the Shore.

Jack Tar is notoriously improvident, and most of our naval seamen when they get ashore spend their money, be it more or less, with a lavish hand. Shore leave is limited to twenty-four hours, but in that brief time the unrestrained sailor manages to run through about all the cash he carries with him. He plunges into a whirl of dissipation and is oftentimes cheated or robbed of a good share of his ready assets, but a percentage of the latter is also apt to go for anything that happens to strike his almost childish fancy. Mascots are the seafarer's delight, and whatever he may come across which seems to him to have a talismanic property he is bound to buy it if he can; hence when the "pier jumpers," as those on shore leave are technically called, return in well filled barges to the ship and under direction of the master at arms climb up to the deck they are likely to bring with them a miscellaneous collection of goats, dogs, parrots, monkeys, roosters, etc. One sailor on the Kearsarge, either in or out of his senses at the time, went so far as to purchase as a mascot a colored baby from its mother for the sum of 40 cents and came aboard with it in his arms. He was not allowed to retain it, however, and the child was eventually restored to its repentant and hysterical parent.

How many of the mascots may be kept on board lies within the discretion of the captain. A liberal policy is pursued in this matter. But manifestly there is a limit to the number of those that can be accommodated. The surplus is sent ashore without delay. When the returned "pier jumpers" are lined up while the ship's writer calls the roll to discover the laggards, it is one of the most perplexing duties of the officer of the deck to decide what dumb creatures may or may not be added to the vessel's menagerie. If the vessel is on her way homeward from the tropics, she usually carries a large variety of living presents for the home friends of the sailors. But these are only temporary tenants of the hold and would not be permitted to remain on board long.—Leslie's Weekly.

FACTS ABOUT FOLKS.

In estimation of measurement men are more accurate than women.

Moral action in child life is more a matter of imitation than intellect.

Dull children are the most unruly, and unruly children are the dullest.

Sweet is tasted best on the tip of the tongue, sour on the edge and bitter at the base.

Mental images themselves constitute the motive, the springs of action for all we do.

Girls show less interest in material things than boys and admire the æsthetic more.

Those who have endured the most hardship in life are usually the least sensitive to pain.

Blushing comes from shyness and fear, is unnatural and morbid and is greater in women than in men.

Rapid readers do their work better, as well as in less time, and retain more of the substance of what is read than slow readers.

Watch Your Shoulders.

When standing before a looking glass, notice if your shoulders are the same height. Generally the right is higher than the left. The reason for this unevenness lies in the way one sits. You get into a comfortable chair at your desk, and at once you rest your right elbow on the arm of your chair or your desk, thus throwing one shoulder higher than the other. This is especially the case where one writes a great deal. When you notice that one shoulder is higher than the other, the thing to do is to change your way of sitting at your desk. Two simple exercises will be beneficial. The arm of the lower shoulder should be extended upward, the hand grasping a dumbbell. That of the higher shoulder should be lowered and made to support a heavy weight.

Mosquitoes are so numerous near the coast of Borneo that the streams of that region are in summer often unnavigable.
